RAMBOUILLET BLOOD.

Successful Sheep Husbandry on Abandoned New England Farms.

As a result of six years of careful and painstaking experiments with sheep husbandry upon the abandoned farms of New England Hon. Frank P. Bennett of Saugus, Mass., president of the New England Woolgrowers' association and first vice president of the National Woolgrowers' association, argues that there is as much difference between races of sheep as between races of men, and that lack of success with a flock of sheep is more often due to the choice of an unfit breed in the beginning than to any other cause. By unfit he means ill adapted to the special conditions and surroundings of the farm upon which the sheep are to be maintained.

The domestic sheep now in the United States are mainly descendants of the flocks introduced by Spanish and English colonists. Hence the so called "native" sheep of all the New England states as well as of Virginia, the Carolinas and in fact of the entire 13 original colonies had for their progenitors the Downs, Leicesters and other English races of sheep. The English colonists brought their own sheep with them, and the Spanish brought theirs. The Spanish sheep imported by Christopher Columbus himself at the isthmus of Panama and by other conquistadores in Mexico and elsewhere have formed the basis of the flocks throughout the western section of the United States. The essential difference between the Spanish and English sheep may be summarized in a single sentence—namely, the sheep of Spanish origin can live together in large numbers with a minimum of care, while the English sheep will perish if housed together in considerable numbers. The "native sheep" of New England, being wholly of English origin, contract fatal diseases of such certainty if kept in large bands that the farmers of Massachusetts and Maine are accustomed to assert in general terms that sheep will not thrive if kept in flocks of more than 30 or 40 head.

RAMBOUILLET RAM.

For sheep raising upon a profitable scale upon the abandoned farms of New England, Mr. Bennett recommends the Rambouillet ram crossed upon "native" ewes. A history of these sheep, of which an illustration is presented herewith, is as follows: In 1785 Louis XVI of France, who two years before had bought the domain of Rambouillet and established an experimental farm thereon, obtained permission from the king of Spain to purchase and take from the last named kingdom a flock of pure Merinos. The Spanish king gave orders that the selection should be made from the finest flocks of his kingdom.

The Rambouillet flock was put under the care of an agricultural commission at the beginning of the French revolution, and through all the horrors of that period it was preserved from danger, and from the day of its foundation in 1786 to the present, a period of over a century, this flock has been conducted with the closest attention to feed, care and selection. The common American Merino ram today weighs about 100 pounds, but the best American Rambouillet ram weighs from 200 to 270 pounds.

The Rambouillets began to be imported into the United States some years ago and are now largely domesticated in Ohio and Michigan. Mr. Bennett has had a considerable flock of them at Freedom, Me. The Rambouillet ewes make excellent mothers and under proper conditions will produce lambs at any season of the year.

As to the theory that the difficulty with sheep raising in New England lies in the destructiveness of dogs, Mr. Bennett writes to a correspondent that this is a great mistake. He has experimented largely with sheep, both in Maine and in Massachusetts, and has never had any trouble with dogs, because he uses a dogproof barbed wire fence, the wire for which cost $67.20 per mile, built of seven strands. The first strand is very close to the ground, so that sheep and dogs cannot crawl under, and they will not jump over, because a fence of moderate height is never troubled by a dog unless he can put his paws upon it when jumping over.

As to the value of an investment in sheep husbandry upon the abandoned farms of New England, Mr. Bennett replies to a correspondent as follows:

DEAR SIR—The development in sheep husbandry which we are suggesting is designed for present or prospective farmers who get their own living from the soil rather than for outside investors who propose going into the industry in the same manner in which they would invest a certain sum of money in railroad or mill shares or bonds. But we have no hesitation in asserting that a well managed investment in sheep husbandry upon farms which are now wholly or partially abandoned in New England would be entirely successful.

In the first place, it should be remembered that the first cost of these farms is exceedingly small, and that most of them can be purchased for the cost of the buildings, if any buildings remain thereon. Ten thousand dollars would purchase 1,000 acres of such land with the necessary buildings and leave something over for quick capital. These should maintain 1,000 sheep, which, with thoroughbred rams, should cost $6,000. All other expenses of the investment, including tools, fences, furniture, etc., should not bring the gross investment above $20,000.

In the management of this investment there should be no operating expenses to speak of except wages of men. Everything else should be grown upon the place, and one of the principal profits of the investment would lie in the fact that under the fertilizing influence of the sheep the property would be constantly increasing in value. In nearly all other investments a percentage must be charged off every year for deterioration of property, but in a sheep farm of this kind the opposite would be true, and a credit could be made upon the profit and loss account every year because of decided improvement of the property. This would appear in the growing productiveness of the farm, which, if it kept 1,000 sheep, handled with reasonable care, would furnish 6,000 pounds of wool in the beginning, which should be sold for $1,400, and 1,000 sheep and lambs, which should bring $5,600, making total earnings of $6,400.

But if the business were well and shrewdly managed the production of wool should eventually increase to ten pounds per head, making from 1,000 sheep 10,000 pounds per annum of somewhat improved quality, which should sell for more than $2,500. Then the flock should be constantly bred in the production of a considerable portion of thoroughbreds, which should furnish each year a carload of 200 thoroughbred rams to be sent to the great woolgrowing regions of the west and sold for $5,000.

In such ways as this the annual gross earnings of the 1,000 acres should be raised to $15,000 per annum, exclusive of the improvement of the property. We have no hesitation in saying that this kind of an investment under proper management could be multiplied almost indefinitely, and that an investment of $20,000 could be made to eventually yield ten times as great an income as an investment of $20,000, and that the expense should not greatly exceed the amount paid in wages to men, as nearly everything required should be raised upon the farm. FRANK P. BENNETT.

GOOD STALLIONS.

Quality and Action Wanted as Well as Bulk.

There has been an active inquiry for good draft and coach stallions all winter, says The Breeder's Gazette, and with the approach of the regular breeding season many sales are being consummated. Since the "boom" days in horse breeding stallion buyers have learned many useful lessons. They know now that a draft stallion must have some breeding quality and action as well as bulk. They know that high class coach horses cannot be successfully bred by the use of cold blooded sires and dams. They know that a trotting bred stallion to be of any real service as a sire must possess size and good looks as well as a fair degree of speed. The market calls for size joined to quality and good action, whether it be in "drafter" or "driver." The time is now here when every farmer can well afford to own a few choice brood mares to be mated to first class sires. The "scrub" is dear property at any price. Beware of breeding to grade stallions or to those purely bred ones that are unsound or of faulty conformation. Do not patronize an inferior horse simply because he stands at a low service fee. Pay a fair price for the service of the best horse within reach. It is difficult enough to attain the superlative in horse breeding even where the best materials are in use. Low bred, under sized, cheap stallions are a curse to any community, and we trust that no Gazette reader will this spring be guilty of giving such any encouragement. If there is no first class horse available, it is easy to form a little syndicate for the purchase of a stallion likely to produce the sort of stock buyers are now so eagerly seeking. Big, fine draft geldings are scarce. First class harness and saddle horses are not easily found. Of "common horses" there are millions. Escape their competition by breeding for something better.

Against Cross Breeding.

The farmer can make money out of any kind of cattle if he breeds them right. Do not cross your Shorthorns with Jerseys. You cannot expect to raise beef cattle if you cross with the dairy breeds. If you are breeding Shorthorns, breed Shorthorns. Do not cross. If you are breeding Jerseys, breed Jerseys. I hear a good many farmers say that they would not have a Jersey on the place. I would not have the kind of Jerseys that they had either. A few years ago the farmers all wanted Jerseys, and they all bought any kind of a cow just so she was yellow, and then they bred her to a Shorthorn bull, and they kept on breeding until they did not have a beef cow nor a dairy cow, and still they say the Jerseys are no good. The Jerseys are today the best milk and butter cows the world has ever produced. If a farmer is a beef breeder, he can afford to keep a few good Jersey cows for his milk and butter. Do not expect to get a good Jersey cow by crossing with your Shorthorns. Buy a good one from some good Jersey breeder.—Emmett McDonald in Breeder's Gazette.

Breeding Animals.

In selecting breeding animals get ewes and bucks of the kind that produce early maturity mutton, so as to get into market early with lambs and matured sheep. A noted authority says: "The sheep industry of this country has not yet arrived at a point where it becomes necessary to breed principally for wool, but producers should first get the best mutton producing qualities thoroughly bred into their flocks or bands, bringing the standard up to a half or three-quarter grade, after which it will be safe to breed for wool without materially disturbing the band as mutton producing animals."

Anchored.

"Up in my den," said a New Orleans bachelor, who lives in a couple of quaintly furnished rooms in a business block down town, "between the fireplace and the first bookcase on the left you will find two large slippers nailed to the wall, some four feet above the wainscoting. The heels of the slippers are quite close together, the toes spread slightly outward, and being made of brightly flowered drugget they look not unlike two enormous particolored beetles, clinging to the wall with folded wings. They are not, however, intended as ornaments, but have a very homely and practical purpose.

"When I retreat to my den at night, take down the book that suits my mood, get into a comfortable, ragged old jacket, turn the lamp just right and light my pipe—when I have performed these preliminary ceremonies, I place a chair directly in front of the slippers, insert my feet in their depths and lean back with the blissful consciousness that I can't possibly tip over and break my neck. I am anchored, so to speak, to the wall, and the light is so arranged as to make the position the best possible one for reading. My friends claim that the habit is pulling out my legs to an abnormal length, but I don't let that worry me. I'm thinking of having the scheme copyrighted." — New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Our One Good Point.

The English woman was arraigning America and everything American and to an American. "Your bed springs are uncomfortable," she said, "I never slept in a comfortable bed the whole time I was in the States. And your breakfasts—such great, overfed meals as they are! I don't see how you live, breakfasting as you do. As for your American voices, well, they go without saying, or rather they won't go with saying, but so many more eloquent than I have so often scored you upon that point I won't pretend to compete. Of all the many dreadful things about America, though, there's nothing so bad as your voices."

"Can't you think of somethng good about us?" came in a still, small voice from the American. "Haven't we a single redeeming quality?"

The English woman thought a bit. "Well, yes, you have one," she said in the tone of one who is making a great concession, "and that is your little clastic bands. They are so convenient, and they seem to be so plentiful. I never saw so many in all my life as I did in the States. I must confess that to my mind very many of your worst traits are more than made up for by your little clastic bands."—New York Sun.

Milton and Dante's Heaven.

Milton's heaven is earthly and obvious, though with none but celestial inhabitants; where eve and morn succeed each other and "grateful twilight" has its appointed hour; where the trees

Of life ambrosial fruitage bear, and vines

whose angels sleep "fanned with cool winds" in their celestial tabernacles and eat not seemingly "nor in mist," but "with keen dispatch of real hunger" verging on excess, from any injurious effects of which, as the poet takes pains to tell us, their spiritual nature avails to save them. Dante's heaven is no less definite and orderly to its minutest detail, but mystical and ethereal, even while peopled by the sons and daughters of earth, passing from glory to glory in ascending brightness, with divine visions that come and go like stars in a cloudy night and attended by the music of the spheres. These are the two extremes between which lesser poets paint and plant their Edens. —Gentleman's Magazine.

Consumption and Canaries.

We do not in this paragraph allude to the islands to which people fly for the cure of consumption, but to the little birds which sing songs to us in their captivity, and are, according to Dr. Tucker Wise, a cause from which consumption comes. This gentleman says that from his own observation he is of opinion that in many instances diseased cage birds, such as canaries, communicate tuberculosis to a serious extent among human beings. As about 400,000 canaries are reputed to be sold every year in the United Kingdom, and as it is stated that tuberculosis is one of the most common diseases of birds, it does not seem unlikely that the canary may have considerable influence in the distribution of tuberculous infection.—London Hospital.

Accepted the Amendment.

Joseph Jefferson, at a dinner in New York, said that when called upon for a curtain speech in New Haven Billy Florence once delivered himself thus: "It is here and to you, ladies and gentlemen, that I owe my present success in my profession. We knew each other when boys and girls. We played marbles together under the shadow of the old church, and now to receive this warm welcome from old friends—what can I say? Simply that I never can forget the people of Hartford." A man in the front row said, "This is New Haven, Mr. Florence." "I mean New Haven, of course," said Florence gravely.

Some Years After.

He—Do you remember the night I proposed to you?

She—Yes, dear.

"We sat for one hour, and you never opened your mouth."

"Yes, I remember, dear."

"Believe me, that was the happiest hour of my life."—Yonkers Statesman.

Egotistical.

"The trouble with him," said the young man who had been trying to fittingly describe an acquaintance, "is that when he dipped into the sea of knowledge he thought he brought up so much that the blamed thing went dry."—Chicago Post.

One of Life's Tragedies.

A story was told by London Truth not long since and its correctness vouched for, which shows the folly of acting hastily and impulsively in important concerns in life.

The son of a very wealthy man at his father's death found himself free to indulge every whim. He had yachts, horses, an island on which he played king at his pleasure. He was not an immoral man, but idle and foolish.

One day while using a long distance telephone he was charmed by the voice of the operator at the other end of the line. He managed to discover that it was that of a woman, young, single and pretty. In the course of a few days he convinced himself that the owner of the voice was the one human being who should be his wife and that life would be empty and desolate without her.

The girl was poor and listened to his proposals. He cabled her money to buy her trousseau and to secure a chaperon to accompany her to the town where he resided.

In due time she arrived. Her looks were as attractive as her voice. He married her and a few days later was found dead by his own hand in his room. He left no explanation beyond the words, "I have made a mistake," scrawled on a sheet of paper left on the table.

Sold Tickets on Him.

It is good to be a celebrity, and it is sometimes profitable merely to recognize one. While Chauncey M. Depew was at the Omaha exposition, says the New York Times, he and President Callaway of the New York Central chanced to go into a booth on the Midway Plaisance.

It was a tame entertainment, and there was only a meager attendance when Mr. Depew and Mr. Callaway entered. Their stay would have been very brief except for the fact that they had scarcely taken their seats before there began a steady inpouring of people, which continued until the small auditorium was crowded.

Taking this extraordinary increase of spectators as an indication that something of an interesting nature was about to be disclosed the two New Yorkers concluded to sit it out. Half an hour's waiting failed to reward their patient expectancy, however, and Mr. Callaway suggested that they move on.

Just then ex-Secretary of Agriculture J. Sterling Morton pushed his way through the crowd and, extending his hand to Mr. Depew, exclaimed:

"Well, Dr. Depew, so you are really here! I thought that 'barker' was lying."

"What do you mean?" inquired Mr. Depew

"Why, the 'barker' for this show is standing outside and inviting the crowd to 'step up lively' and pay 10 cents for the privilege of seeing the 'great and only Chauncey M. Depew.'"

Not a German.

"Did you enjoy the german the other night, Miss Daisy?" asked Tinkleton.

"He wasn't a German, Mr. Tinkleton," answered Daisy innocently; "he's an Englishman."—Harper's Bazar.

The wolf of starvation howls at the doors of thousands of men who are well to do and surrounded by plenty. Ill-health, in the majority of cases, is starvation, pure and simple. It means that body, brain, nerve, bone and sinew are improperly or insufficiently nourished. Improper, insufficient nourishment is starvation.

When a man's head aches it is because the tissues of the brain do not receive sufficient nourishment from the blood, or receive impure and unhealthy nourishment. When a man gets nervous and sleepless, it means that the blood is not properly nourishing the nerves. When his skin breaks out with blotches and pimples and eruptions, it means that the skin is being fed upon the impurities of the blood. Almost every known disease is primarily due to improper nourishment through the blood, which is the life-stream. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the greatest of all blood-makers and purifiers. It gives edge to the appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, makes the assimilation of the life-giving elements of the food perfect, invigorates the liver, promotes secretion and excretion, and vitalizes the whole body. It makes firm, muscular flesh, but does not make corpulent people more corpulent. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and kindred affections, which, if neglected, lead up to consumption. It is the best of all nerve tonics and restoratives. Kept by all medicine dealers.

"I was taken ill in February, 1892, with headache and pain in my back," writes H. Gaddis, Esq., of 313 South J Street, Tacoma, Wash. "I called in a doctor and he came three times. He said I was bilious but I kept getting worse; I took a cough so that I could not sleep, only by being propped up in bed. My lungs hurt me, and I got so poor that I was just skin and bone. I thought I was going to die. I used two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it made me sound and well. It saved my life."

No remedy relieves constipation so quickly and effectively as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They never gripe.

GOVERNOR GAGE, it is reported, says that in case Matt Quay of Pennsylvania is seated in the Federal Senate that he will appoint D. M. Burns Senator from California. This has caused both the Chronicle and Call to warn the Governor that should he make Mr. Burns a Senator it will disrupt the Republican party and give the State to the Democrats two years hence. Now, the INDEX-TRIBUNE has no ill feelings toward Mr. Burns. In fact there are many things to be admired in the man, and his Republicanism is unquestioned. But for all that, we agree with our city contemporaries that his appointmen at this time would be a great political victory for the Democrats, who, remarkable to relate, sympathize with Burns to a man in his efforts to reach the United States Senate. If Governor Gage sacrifices his party to advance the Senatorial aspirations of a friend he will be consigned to political oblivion forever after his term of office expires.

THE Native Sons at their Grand Parlor session in Salinas have endorsed Mr. Benjamin Weed's project to establish a chair of California History in the State University. A committee will be appointed to work in conjunction with the Grand Officers and the Society of California Pioneers. At the next session of the Grand Parlor this committee will report a detailed plan of ways and means for carrying out the idea together with a statement of the amount of money that has been pledged. Mr. Weed, who is a resident of Sonoma, says that a number of Parlors have promised to do all in their power to establish the chair by Admission Day 1900.

THE showers of the past week have been of great benefit to hay, grain and pasturage and ensures for Sonoma Valley an enormous hay crop, and pasturage in plenty until late in the season. The weather so far this month has been peculiarly favorable for both farmer and dairyman. The only thing now feared is a frost in May. Should our wine growers be spared this visitation there will also be a fine crop of wine and table grapes. Notwithstanding last year was one of drouth and failure of crops in almost all the counties in the State Sonoma harvested one of the biggest hay and grain crops known for many years. This season she will do even better.

Is Baby Too Thin?

If so, there must be some trouble with its food. Well babies are plump; only the sick are thin. Are you sure the food is all right? Children can't help but grow; they must grow if their food nourishes them. Perhaps a mistake was made in the past and as a result the digestion is weakened. If that is so, don't give the baby a lot of medicine; just use your every-day common sense and help nature a little, and the way to do it is to add half a teaspoonful of to the baby's food three or four times a day. The gain will begin the very first day you give it. It seems to correct the digestion and gets the baby started right again. If the baby is nursing but does not thrive, then the mother should take the emulsion. It will have a good effect both upon the mother and child. Twenty-five years proves this fact.

Thrilling Experience of Walter Price and R. A. Temple.

Preliminary Examination of G. W. Laymance — His Defense will be that the Doctors Caused Kartell's Death.

Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Price and Guager R. A. Temple had quite a thrilling experience on the banks of Santa Rosa creek near the Hefty winery, on the Sonoma road, Tuesday, says the Press-Democrat, as a result of which Mr. Price left for his home at Vine Hill later in the evening, not certain, if all his ribs were sound, and Mr. Temple is at his home in this city suffering from an injury to his hip.

Price and Temple were returning to Santa Rosa in a buggy, and while rounding the curve in the road some little distance beyond the Hefty winery the horse became frightened at a man walking along the road carrying a bundle, and became unmanageable.

In twisting about on the road, which at this place is narrow, the horse backed the buggy over the edge of the embankment. The animal then tried to turn around on the steep bank, and finally wound up with precipitating the buggy and its occupants fifteen feet down the bank. The vehicle turned a complete somersault, and Price and Temple likewise. One man grabbed the buggy and held onto it to prevent it taking another fall. The horse's front feet were over the steep bank of Santa Rosa creek, and the animal was kept in that position for some little time. The animal became restive again and finally rolled over the embankment, buggy and all, into the rushing creek below.

Help was summoned, and in due time the buggy and horse were hauled out. The buggy was damaged and the harness cut, but both were patched up to allow the revenue officers to return to town. The horse was not injured to speak of. The men had a lucky escape.

The preliminary examintion of George W. Laymance, charged with the murder of Dr. Kartell at Healdsburg some months ago, began in Justice Provine's court in Healdsburg Wednesday, says the Press Democrat. Attorney Thomas J. Geary appeared for the defendant, and the District Attorney and his deputy represented the people. Several witnesses were examined. A number of spectators were in attendance, but the case progressed very slowly. It is probable that several days will be consumed in the preliminary hearing. The contention of the defense, as brought out by the evidence introduced Wednesday, is that Karteli came to his death not from the actual wounds inflicted by Laymance, but as the result of the operation afterwards performed by the physicians having the case in charge. Laymance, the prisoner at the bar, it will be remembered, was captured several weeks ago by Sheriff Frank P. Grace way down in Arkansas near the borders of the Indian Territory. The crime with which he is charged was committed on the evening of December 28th, and took place on one of the principal streets of Healdsburg. Immediately after the trouble Laymance disappeared and was not seen again until Sheriff Grace tapped him on the shoulder at the place stated on the morning of March 10th.

Arne Conklin, a lad sixteen year of age, employed on the J. E. Jewett place at Forestville, met with a serious accident yesterday, which may cost him his life, says the Press-Democrat. The lad was working with a harrow and span of horses, and in some unaccountable way got a tooth of the harrow stuck in his back, inflicting a terrible wound in his back in the region of his kidneys. The young man's friends hope he will recover.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF A YOUNG MAN.

Body Discovered in the Electric Light Tank House.

Verdict of Accidental Death From Unknown Causes.

Wm. H. Holliet, engineer of the Sonoma Electric Light Company, was found dead in the tank house, which is located immediately in the rear of the power house, on Monday afternoon last about five o'clock. Superintendent Fochetti, when it came time to start up the works discovered that engineer Holliet was absent from the power house. He sent his fourteen-year-old son Julius to search for the missing engineer, never for a moment thinking that anything had happened to him. Among other places examined by the lad in his search for the missing engineer was the tank house, at the bottom of which he discovered the body of engineer Holliet lying on his right side partly submerged by water which had seeped into the bottom of the tank house and which covered it to a depth of from six to eight inches. He immediately gave the alarm and Superintendent Fochetti, who was in his blacksmith shop adjoining the power house, came to the rescue and lifting the unfortunate young man up in his arms passed him up to several bystanders who had been attracted to the scene.

Efforts were then made to revive the engineer, although he was pulseless and apparently dead when help arrived. Shortly after Dr. Walliser examined the body and pronounced life extinct.

The exact manner in which Holliet met his death will never be known, as no one was present when he entered the tank house. The supposition is, however, that he entered the place, but for just what purpose is not apparent, and being seized with a fainting spell fell face downward in the shallow water and being unconscious smothered to death. Another theory advanced was that as he stepped into the tank house he slipped and fell and was rendered unconscious by striking his head against one of the tank beams, but this theory was exploded when it was discovered that his head did not appear to be bruised in the least. There were many discolorations about the face, but these were caused by immersion in the water upon which floated a quantity of gasoline which had leaked out of one of the tanks.

When the body was found it was fully dressed and there was a flower in the lapel of the coat, proving conclusively that he was not at work in the tank house when he met with the accident that cost him his life.

Coroner Pierce held an inquest on the remains Tuesday afternoon and swore in the following jury to inquire into the case of death: W. G. Landgrebe, Wm. Meyers, D. M. Eschbach, Robt. Atwood, G. S. Harris and W. Stammers. After listening to the testimony of a number of witnesses the jury were unable to determine just how deceased met with the accident that caused his death, and rendered the following verdict:

"We, the undersigned jurors, summoned to appear before J. G. Pierce, the Coroner of Sonoma County, on April 25th, 1899, to inquire into the death of Wm. H. Holliet, having been duly sworn according to law, and having made such inquisition after inspecting the body and hearing the testimony adduced, upon our oaths each and all do say that we find deceased was named Wm. H. Holliet, aged about 19 years, and that he came to his death on the 24th day of April by accidental death from causes unknown to the jury."

Deceased was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Holliet and a brother of Louis and Clara Holliet of San Francisco.

The remains were encased in a handsome casket by the Electric Light Company and on Tuesday afternoon were forwarded to the relatives of deceased in San Francisco.

Sonoma Dredger Boys Save $75,000 Worth of Property.

Capt. Jas. Landy of this place, but who is now on the San Joaquin in charge of the dredger L. E. Cross, on Sunday of last week saved Victoria Island from being inundated. The island was seeded to potatoes and grain and had it not been for Capt. Landy and his crew the loss would have exceeded $75,000. It appears that the levee surrounding the island had been cut at low tide to allow a ditching machine to be towed out into the river. A bulkhead was constructed back of the embankment but a short time after the opening had been made the flood tide came in and the bulkhead gave way. Capt. Landy happened to be near by with his dredger and immediately got his "mud-slinger" into position and it piled dirt into the opening, which was twenty-five feet in width, as fast as it could. The flow of water was stopped and the levee built up to the level of the remainder of the embankment.

A Measuring Social.

A very enjoyable measuring social was given by the ladies of the Congregational Church in the lecture rooms of the church on Friday evening of last week. Each person was measured before entering the lecture room and charged three cents a foot, and one cent for every inch over the number of feet in his or her height. When everyone had been measured games, music and social converse were in order until about ten o'clock when refreshments consisting of coffee and cake were served. The evening passed off very pleasantly to those who were present, all of whom voted the social a great success.

L. W. MASLIN'S FEARFUL FATE.

With Eight Companions He Becomes Food for Vultures.

Perishes From Thirst and Starvation on the Coast of Central America.

News from Central America tells of the fearful fate of L. W. Maslin, well-known to many of the residents of this valley.

In 1895 young Maslin, who was then about twenty-four years of age, was married to Miss Emma Saunders, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Wm. K. Rogers of this place. The wedding took place at Temalic Hall, the palatial home of the bride's parents. Shortly after, the young married couple left for their future home in Guatemala, Central America, where Mr. Maslin just previous to the marriage had engaged in sugar planting and coffee growing. Six months after locating in Guatemala Mrs. Maslin was taken down with one of those deadly fevers peculiar to that climate and in three days was dead.

Mr. Maslin, after the death of his wife, lost $15,000 or $20,000 by the revolution that swept over Salvador and ended in the flight of President Ezeta. He then left Guatemala and engaged in business at El Triumpho and was on the high road to prosperity when he met with his tragic end. On December 3rd last Mr. Maslin left the harbor of El Truimpho in an open boat with eight companions to meet an incoming steamer. They never returned and the fate of the men was unknown until about April 1st, when an open boat was cast upon the beach about 150 miles from El Triumpho. The boat contained in the shape of a mass of hair, bones and rags all that remained of poor Maslin and his eight companions. There was every evidence to show that the men had been driven out to sea by a sudden storm and had drifted aimlessly and helplessly about for days until one by one they had laid down in the boat and died from exhaustion, thirst and starvation.

After the boat had been cast upon the beach vultures swooped down upon the remains of the unfortunate men and picked their bones clean.

The remains of young Maslin were identified by his watch and chain and other jewelry which were on his person when he left El Triumpho. These are now in the hands of his father, Deputy Naval Officer Maslin of San Francisco, having been sent him last week by a friend in Central America.

Louis Woodley Maslin was thirty years of age and a graduate of the University of California. His dreadful end will be greatly deplored by a host of friends in this county, San Francisco and Alameda.

Future of the Bicycle.

It is agreed by all bicycle manufacturers that the 1899 models represent the perfect wheel, and that in future the silent steed will be practically what it is to-day. Improvement seems to be impossible, as the bicycle accomplishes everything that is required of it. Precisely the same thing is true of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It represents the limit of science in overcoming disease, and it is impossible to make a better medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and blood. A few doses of the bitters will start weak, nervous and bloodless people on the road to strength. A regular course of treatment will bring back the pink to the cheeks and sparkle to the eye. Sleep will come naturally, and it will be refreshing and healthful. Dyspepsia, indigistion and constipation will be completely banished, and the blessings of true health bestowed. Never take a substitute for this perfect remedy.

Saturday Night Club.

An effort will be made this evening to organize a Saturday Night Club at Odd Fellows Hall. The object of the club will be to hear and discuss interesting and profitable questions weekly. All are cordially invited to be present and enroll their names. Rev. Mr. Milliken will deliver an address during the evening on "Our Navy." Later on the club will be entertained with addresses by Dr. A. E. Osborne, Robt. Hall and others.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

H. H. GRANICE, Proprietor.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1899.

Notice of Business Change.

The old saying that "the unlooked-for always happens" may be true in the present instance. The Sonoma News is no more! Having sold the paper and its good will to Mr. Granice, the business and subscription books pass into his hands. Those who are in arrears for their paper will please pay Mr. Granice and those who have paid in advance will receive the INDEX-TRIBUNE to full extent of their subscriptions.

There are three reasons I might give for making this change. It is well known that I did not buy the News with the intention of running it myself. A person usually sells a commercial commodity when the price asked is accepted. The third reason is the more potent one—our patronizing territory is too limited to properly support two weekly newspapers.

But we do need and must have for the weal of the commonwealth one good, wide-awake paper, which shall be alive to the best interests of our people, and such a paper Mr. Granice will be able to furnish us providing he has the good will and support his paper merits. So we sincerely hope all our subscribers and patrons will lend a hand.

With a thank you to our friends and wishes for the success of the INDEX-TRIBUNE we break our quill.

E. E. THOMPSON.

Sonoma Jan. 3, 1899.

What Shall We Do.

A serious and dangerous disease prevails in this country, dangerous because so deceptive. It comes on so slowly yet surely that it is often firmly seated before we are aware of it.

The name of this disease which may be divided into three distinct stages is, First, Kidney trouble, indicated by pain in the back, rheumatism, lumbago, frequent desire to urinate, often with a burning sensation, the flow of urine being copious or scant with strong odor.

If allowed to advance, this reaches the Second stage, or Bladder trouble, with heavy pain in the abdomen low down between the navel and the water passage, increasing desire to urinate, with scalding sensation in passing, small quantities being passed with difficulty, sometimes necessary to draw it with instruments. If uric acid or gravel has formed, it will prove dangerous if neglected.

The Third stage is Bright's disease.

There is comfort in knowing that Dr. Kilmer, the great kidney and bladder specialist, has discovered a remedy famous for its marvelous cures of the most distressing cases and know as Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

It is sold by all druggists.

As a proof of the wonderful virtues of this great discovery, Swamp-Root, a sample bottle and book of valuable information will be sent absolutely free by mail on application to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, New York. When writing kindly mention that your read this liberal offer in the SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

The Ungainly Russian Sailor.

A real sailorman has fingers bent up like fishhooks from the lifelong habit of gripping things. The Russian sailor carries his hands like a soldier and cannot possibly be "handy." A sailor's gait ashore has a slight roll. This arises from the need at sea of keeping up the windward side of a rolling ship. And the rolling gait marks one of a sailor's finest qualities—balance. Unless the body balances and poises to meet every motion of a ship the result is seasickness.

Now, the Russian bluejacket does not roll in his gait ashore, but marches. Neither has he any sense of balancing at sea and seasickness in the Russian fleet is a source of actual weakness and danger. The Black sea squadron can only put to sea in the three calmest months of the summer, and the so called maneuvers take place ashore on the Kenai peninsula, consisting mainly of battalion drill.

One more trait of the real sailor is his self reliance, which makes him fit for facing emergencies single handed. But the Russian bluejacket has none of this. He is not a machine in himself, but only a little bit of a machine which cannot work without the other bits. He is huge in stature—a giant compared with our men—but in his winter overcoat it is impossible to distinguish him from a soldier. Unhandy, seasick and reliant only in drill discipline, he is utterly unfit for active service.—London Answers.

Silent Brides.

In Korea during the whole of the marriage day the bride must be as mute as a statue. If she says a word, or even makes a sign, she becomes an object of ridicule, and her silence must remain unbroken, even in her own room, though her husband should attempt to break it by taunts, jeers or coaxing, for the female servants are all on the watch for such a breach of etiquette as speech, hanging about the doors and chinks to catch up and repeat even a single utterance, which would cause her to lose caste forever in her circle.

This custom of silence is observed with the greatest rigidity among the higher classes. It may be a week or several months before the husband knows the sound of his wife's voice, and even after that for a length of time she only opens her mouth for necessary speech. With the father-in-law the custom of silence is still more rigid, the daughter-in-law often passes years without raising her eyes to his or addressing a word to him. In Bulgaria a month's silence is imposed on brides unless specially addressed by the husband.

Wanted Her Money's Worth.

Bridget Rafferty had served the best years of her life as a cook, and now that she was "wearin awa'" and an operation became necessary she haughtily declined to go to a ward, but took one of the best rooms in the hospital. The operation was successful, but the patient was allowed very little food. During her convalescence she made frequent use of the electric bell at her bed. The nurse would fly to her, to be greeted with some trifling question or the remark, "I only wanted to know if you were there."

As such frequent use of her bell suggested to the matron on that floor that the nurse was neglecting her patient, the nurse remonstrated, and received the following unique explanation:

"Well, you see, miss, here I am paying $30 a week, and I'm not seeing anything, I'm not hearing anything, and, miss, I'm not eating anything. So I just ring the bell to get my money's worth, and, anyways, I enjoy hearing it ring."—San Francisco Argonaut.

No Diamonds For Her.

Here is a story from The Bookman, told by Rudyard Kipling. His father, John Kipling, went to pay a visit to an Indian rajah who was about to bring home a queen. The elder Kipling had been engaged in the decorations of the palace, and its owner showed him the gifts of stuffs and perfumes he had procured for his coming spouse. The rajah also sent for his jewel caskets and asked Mr. Kipling to assist him in selecting the gems to be included in the marriage gifts. They were of extraordinary size and value, such gems as are seldom seen except in the east, and to the artist the selection was a pleasure. Finally he lifted a wonderful diamond, one of the choicest gems in the collection, and said: "You should send this. No woman could resist it." The rajah looked up, caught it and held it jealously to his breast, then, slowly replacing it in the casket, answered, "Nay, such gems be not for women."

They Were New.

"Now, George, quit pulling my ear!"

"It's my ear now, sweet! Going to pull it all I please!"

This is why the hard featured passenger with the iron gray chin beard, who had been sitting in the seat behind a young man in a new black broadcloth suit and a young woman in a gray silk traveling dress, got up hastily and went forward into the smoking car.—Chicago Tribune.

Here's a Trick.

First Lady—What birthday present are you going to give to your husband?

Second Lady—A hundred cigars.

First Lady—And what did you pay for them?

Second Lady—Oh, nothing! For the last few months I have taken one or two out of Jack's box every day. He hasn't noticed it, and will be so pleased with my little present and the fine quality of the cigars.—London Fun.

He Was Low.

"An so Arabella has gone and engaged herself to a low churchman? Indeed I am astonished! Why, she even believes in the confessional!"

"Oh, as to that, perhaps he does too! But I should judge that he isn't an inch over five feet in his socks."—Cleveland Leader.
